DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 5/7/2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argued that the reference does not teaches monitoring on a net basis and providing a standard cost basis for provision of network services.

The argument is not persuasive because Hodroff teaches a bartering system for exchanges of commodities and services. Hodroff provides a standard cost basis [CEDS] for exchange of services and commodities. Hodroff teaches monitoring on a net basis for provision and credit earn [e.g. the process of maintaining credit balance for each user account]. It is a basic business principle that an account balance or net worth is equal credit earned minus expenses incurred. It is apparent in the system as modified would have means for maintaining the amount of credit earned by a user for providing computing time and the amount of credited used from services provided to that user in order to maintain the user account balance (i.e. "monitoring on a net basis" as claimed).
